INTRODUCTION: MONSTERS AND MORTALS

All the beings in the game world can be divided into 2 broad categories: Monsters and Mortals.

Monsters (which includes normal and bigger sized animals) are assigned various descriptions, such as AC and Hit Dice, damage inflicted, special abilities etc., based on the judgment of the monster designer or the campaign Judge. So, a medium-sized Ape has AC 13, because the writer of this book decided that its hide and muscle protected less than metal armor would, but more than clothes and that's as far as it goes. If a Judge decides to create a giant Snail for his campaign, he might decide that since the snail is partially covered by very hard shell, and half is just sticky goo, he will assign an AC of 16.

The Monsters' number of Hit Dice are assigned by the writer or Judge as he sees fit, with the Die Type depending on the Size that the designer decides upon. The attack bonus and saving throws are determined by the number of Hit Dice, but everything else is totally at the discretion of the Judge.

Mortals, on the other hand, use the very same rules that are presented in Book 1: Hacklords and Hexmastery for use by player characters. Mortals' AC is determined by the armor actually worn. Mortals' attack bonus, hit dice, and saving throws are determined from their class and level, which have the same options as player characters. Mortals use the same weapons and spells as the player characters too. The only main difference between Mortal NPCs and Player Characters, is that most Mortal NPC's of whatever class, level or species, do not generally have Ability Scores rolled for them (except for henchmen, and NPC party members who may need them from time to time). They are assumed to have an average range of 8-13 in their ability scores, with enough STR to carry their gear. The Judge may roll or assign Ability Scores to Mortal NPC's if he wishes, but it is not necessary for most game play.

PART ONE: MONSTERS AND BEASTS

1.0—MONSTER NOTES

AC: the armor class of the monster. It is based on a combination of speed, toughness of hide, actual armor worn etc.

HD: the number and type of hit die. So, 5d8 means the monster rolls 5 8-sided dice and totals them for the number of hit points of damage it can withstand. The number of dice is a combination of its frame and hardiness combined with its inherent magical nature and its fighting experience or design for fighting. The type of die is based on its size, with undead and spiritual beings getting a 1d12 substitution based on their magical nature and lack of real organs. The die types progress as follows: Very Tiny (0-1 pt), Tiny 1d2, Small 1d4, Medium 1d6, Large 1d8, Gigantic 1d10, Undead/Supernatural 1d12.

SIZE: the size category of the monster.

VT: Very Tiny: anything less than 1 pound: 0-1 hit points, ex. A bug

T: Tiny: anything less than 20 pounds: 1d2 hit points, ex. A cat

S: Small: anything less than 90 pounds: 1d4 hit points, ex. A dog

M: Medium: anything between 90 and 500 pounds, 1d6 hit points, ex. A human

L: Large: anything between 500 and 2500 pounds: 1d8 hit points. Ex. A horse

G: Gigantic: anything over 2500 pounds: 1d10 hit points, Ex. An elephant

MOVE: the standard movement allowance of the creature. Usually this is ground speed, although for sea creatures it might be swimming speed. If it can fly that will be noted, often with a second speed.

ALIGNMENT: each creature is rated as Lawful, Neutral or Chaotic. Lawful indicates that the creature is on the side of civilization, law, and opposes the expansion of Hell. Chaotic means the creature will put its own will, whim and lust for power over all other considerations and desires the destruction of civilization. Neutrals are those either don't understand the conflict between Law and Chaos (animals), or don't care (thieves) or believe that it will sort itself out on its own (nature spirits) or are willing to play one side against the other for profit (mercenaries) or have concerns that they deem more important than this conflict and will join whichever side will help their aims (patriots, researchers, ideologues, vengeance-seekers).

SAVE: the number of better on 1d20 needed for the creature to make a saving throw. It is usually equal to 17 minus the number of HD of the creature (to a maximum of -11). Certain monsters might have an additional adjustment of 1-2 points, especially those with a clerical connection. A "1" or "2" rolled on a save is always a failure, a "19" or "20" is always a success.

MOR: the number of dice rolled to determine the Morale Level of any particular monster or group of monsters of this type encountered. If it says "2d6" or "3d6" simply roll that number of dice and add them together. If it says 4d6 or more, roll that number of dice, take the highest 3 of the dice rolled and add them up for the MOR number. If the entry reads XX, it means that the creature never checks morale under any circumstance.

ATTACK BONUS: each monster gets a bonus to its attack roll which approximates its size, skill and power. This bonus is derived from its number of hit dice as follows:

Less than 1d6: +0

1-HD: +1

2-HD: +2

3-HD: +3

4-HD: +4

5-HD: +5

6 HD: +6

7 HD: +7

8 HD: +8

9 HD: +9

10 HD: +10

11+ HD: +11

DAMAGE: the number and type of dice rolled for damage points on a successful hit by the creature in combat. There is also usually some indication of what sort of attack is being made. If there is a notation like "2 fists" or "Claws x2" it means that the monster gets that number of separate attacks with the stated damage. C/c/b stands for Claw/Claw/Bite meaning the monster can make 3 attacks, 2 claws and 1 bite each round. It might also say "+ poison" or "+ drain" or "+1 level" or "=knockdown" which are reminders of a special attack that might occur on a successful hit in combat.

SPECIAL ATTACK: any special attack the monster can make beyond normal hit point damage. Most special attacks are explained in the monster descriptions, but here are some of the most important and common ones.

Blood Drain: some monsters, once they hit continue to suck out blood in subsequent rounds without needing to make a hit roll again.

Can Hit Invulnerable: this monster can hit and inflict damage on monsters that have the Invulnerable special defense, or the Silver special defense. The monster does not need a special weapon to do so.

Charge x2: if the monster makes a Charge, it will inflict double damage (like a lance does).

Constrict: if the constrictor hits a target the same size or smaller than itself, it wraps its coils around the victim and will crush it for its normal melee damage each round thereafter with no need to make an attack roll. Each round the victim suffers a cumulative -1 penalty to all rolls while constricted. The victim may only attack with a dagger, fist or knife or attempt to escape by making a saving throw each round, no other actions.

Disease: the standard "disease" from monster attacks allows an immediate saving throw to avoid the effect entirely. If that fails, at the end of the day the character will get a -1 to all of his rolls. The disease progresses for 1d6 days, each day adding another -1 to all rolls. At the end of that time, the character must make a second save. If he succeeds, the disease begins to pass, improving over the same number of days as it came on. If he fails, he dies. The disease can be removed at any time before death by a Cure Disease spell.

Energy Drain: some monsters when they hit will drain away 1 or more levels of experience or HD from a character or monster. The victim can make a saving throw against this effect. If the save fails the level is lost permanently, XP total is reduced to the mid-point of the previous level. The level can be restored by a Restoration spell, or by earning sufficient XP to regain the level.

Hug Attack: bear-like monsters can often do a hug attack. If both of the paws/claws hit in a round, they add additional Hug damage without having to roll an additional attack. The next round, they don't roll an attack for their paws, just automatically inflict the hug damage. The hugged character can either make an attack with his hands or a knife/dagger that was in easy reach, or he can attempt to escape by making a saving throw.

Poison: unless the description reads otherwise, the default for a poison attack is that the victim gets a saving throw. If he fails the saving throw, he falls to the ground twitching and foaming at the mouth, completely helpless and will die about 10 minutes after the combat ends, unless cured or treated. Some poisons may only paralyze, others may grant a bonus to the saving throw.

Stun: a character that is Stunned by an effect cannot move or attack or make Extra Attacks for as long as the stun lasts. He, however, is not prone or defenseless and maintains his full armor class and can't simply be killed.

SPECIAL DEFENSE: any special means that protect the monster apart from Armor Class and Saving Throw are listed here. These are usually detailed in the monster description, but a few more important or more common are outlined here.

Invulnerable: an invulnerable creature cannot be injured by normal or silver weapons. It requires a magic weapon to do damage. Unless otherwise stated, it is also unable to be injured by normal torch fire or oil, only magical fire.

Save to Keep Fighting: some creatures are too ornery to die. When they go below 0 hit points, they can make a saving throw each round to keep on fighting until they reach -20 at which point they die.

Silver: a Silver-Required (shortened to Silver) creature cannot be injured by normal weapons, it requires a silver (or magic) weapon to inflict damage upon it. Unless otherwise stated, it is also unable to be injured by normal torch fire or oil, only magical fire.

Undead Immunities: All undead have the following immunities: immune to all Enchantment Realm Spells, immune to Poison and Disease and immune to any other spell or effect that brings about Sleep, Mind-Reading or Charm.

VULNERABILITIES: any particular attacks that affect this monster but not most other monsters are noted here. Some examples are provided below.

Holy Water/Unholy Water: a monster with this vulnerability takes damage when hit by holy or unholy water (1d8 per round for 2 rounds). Most creatures just get wet.

1.1—CHAPTER ONE: ANIMALS

Section I: APES

TYPE	Ape, Small	Ape, Medium	Ape, Large	Ape, Gigantic
AC	11	13	14	18
HD	2d4	3d6	6d8	12d10
SIZE	S	M	L	G
MOVE	30'	30'	35'	50'
ALIGNMENT	Neutral	Neutral	Neutral	Neutral
SAVE	15	14	11	6
MOR	2d6	3d6	3d6	4d6
ATT. BONUS	+2	+3	+6	+11
DAMAGE	2 fists, 1d4	2 fists, 1d6	2 fists, 1d8	2 fists 1d10
SPEC. ATTACK	Bite 2d4	Bite 2d6	Bite, 2d8	Bite 2d10
SPEC. DEF.	None	None	None	None

Apes: size small and medium can be used for monkeys, baboons, gibbons, chimps, orangutans, most gorillas. Large stats can be used for the largest gorillas, white cave apes, terror-mountain apes etc. Apes normally attack with fists, but if both hit, they can make a bite attack too. A gigantic ape can do 1 point of siege damage against wooden targets.

Section II: BATS

TYPE	Bat, Small	Bat, Medium	Bat, Large	Bat Gigantic
AC	15	11	13	13
HD	1d4	2d6	5d8	10d10
SIZE	S	M	L	G

SPEC. ATTACK	Hug 2d6	Hug 2d8	Hug 2d10	Hug 2d12
SPEC. DEF.	None	None	None	None

Hug Attack: if both paws hit a target a bear automatically does the hug attack damage in addition, and can continue each round thereafter without making attack rolls (see Monster Notes).

Giant Bear: a giant bear can do 1 point of siege damage against wooden targets

Section IV: BIRDS

TYPE	Bird, Small	Bird, Medium	Bird, Large	Bird, Gigantic
AC	15	11	13	13
HD	1d4	2d6	5d8	10d10
SIZE	S	M	L	G
MOVE	Fly 55'	Fly 50'	Fly 50'	Fly 50'

SPEC. ATTACK	Beak 1d4	Beak 1d6	Beak 1d8	Beak 3d6
SPEC. DEF.	None	None	None	None

Birds: size S birds cover most real-world birds, with size M being appropriate for large flightless birds (with flying speed changed to 40' move). The other birds are for fictional and legendary birds,, like a Roc (Gigantic). If a bird hits with its talons attack, it can roll a beak attack as well.

SECTION V: CATS

TYPE	Cat, house	Puma	Lion	Tiger
AC	11	13	13	13

SPEC. ATTACK	Disease 5%	Blood drain 2d4	Spray Stink	--
SPEC. DEF.	--	--	--	--

Big Rat: each bites has a 5% chance of causing a disease (save applies).

Big Weasel: when the weasel hits, it drains out 2d4 points of blood damage each round without needing to roll to attack.

Big Skunk: the skunk spray is 60' long, 20' wide cloud. Save or be blinded for 1d6 hours, lose 50% of STR and DEX for 1d4 turns, retreat in disgust for 1d4 rounds. All cloth and paper items, even magic ones are destroyed; all other items must be soaked for several days or you can't surprise any enemies, or make any friends.

SECTION XIV: SEA CREATURES

SPEC. ATTACK	Poison or Constrict	Poison or Constrict	Poison or Constrict	Poison or Constrict
SPEC. DEF.	-	-	-	--

Each snake can either poison or constrict, never both.

Poison: this is a standard poison attack, see Monster Notes.

Constrict: if the snake hits a target the same size or smaller than itself, it wraps its coils around the victim and will crush it for its normal melee damage each round thereafter with no need to make an attack roll. Each round the victim suffers a cumulative -1 penalty to all rolls while constricted. The victim may only attack with a dagger, fist or knife or attempt to escape by making a saving throw each round, no other actions.

SECTION XVI: TOADS

SPEC. ATTACK	Tongue Grab	Tongue Grab	Tongue Grab	Tongue Grab
SPEC. DEF.	-	-	-	--

Toad Tongue Grab: instead of attacking for damage a toad can use its sticky tongue to grab a target that is smaller size code than itself from a distance (S=3', M=5', L=10', G=20'). If it hits it will pull the target 1d6 feet closer to its mouth each round. If the target reaches the mouth it is swallowed and suffers the normal melee damage for that sort of toad each round, while being totally helpless until he or the toad is killed. If someone hits the tongue before the victim is dragged to the mouth, the toad will flee in panic.

Bookworms: these small worms voraciously eat parchment, vellum and papyrus, destroying books and scrolls. They are very difficult to detect, requiring a Bibliophile skill check or INT d100 to find before they do damage. The smoke from the herb vermifuge will destroy them. While they will destroy most written material within 1 hour of infestation, occasionally, they will enter a torpor, based on the ink/paper chemistry and will not finish the job. When this happens, the book is called a "wormy book" and lies as a trap for the unwary. The worms in a wormy book will be awakened and ravenous when the wormy book is brought near new books or scrolls.

Rot Worms: found in dungeon garbage, if not avoided using "Searcher Skill", the worms will burrow into a person, who must apply open flame the very first round (1d6 damage to the person) or they will chew into him, reaching his brain and killing him in 1d6 turns. A cure disease will stop them.

Ear Worms: these tiny worms live in dead wood, like dungeon doors, but crawl into warm areas, like the ears of adventurers listening at a dungeon door, in order to lay eggs. In 1d6 hours after being laid, the eggs hatch into aggressive worms that do 1 hit point of damage to the victim each turn until he is dead or a cure disease spell destroys the worms. Apart from using Searcher Skill to check the door before hand, there is no way to detect or treat the worms otherwise. The victim will simply just suddenly start to lose hit points, accompanied by splitting head pain.

Leech: leeches latch on to targets and drain 1d4 hit points per round, however, because of the strong anesthetic in their bite, they often latch on and aren't detected by the victim until it's too late. If he can't see the leech (on his back etc) he must make a Saving Throw to realize it's there.

Hide in Shadows: ticks use the Hide in Shadows skill, clinging to a ceiling or tree and dropping on an enemy by surprise. Roll 1d6, if the tick rolls 3+ if has hidden successfully and gets an automatic surprise drop attack with a +2 to hit.

1.3—CHAPTER THREE: CONSTRUCTS

Constructs are “beings” created by spells or alchemy, not imbued with actual life.

Construct Immunities: All constructs are immune to all Enchantment spells, Mind-reading, any form of Charm, Sleep or Hold effect. They are also immune to poison and disease.

Bronze Statue: bronze statues are created with a large 2-handed weapon which they can use to make a sweep attack: if they are in contact with 4 or more enemies they can make a single sweeioing attack roll, which is compared to the AC of all the targets, hitting any that the roll would have hit singly. Bronze statues are immune to all small weapons.

Crystal Statue: crystal statues are able to emit a flash of radiance in a 30'x30' area around themselves instead of attacking, the radiance will do 3d6 damage to all undead or demons in the area. Crystal statues are immune to clubs, batons, fists, and staffs.

Iron Statue: If both of an iron statue's fists hit (and it always targets the same guy with both attacks), the target takes an additional 1d10 points and is knocked prone. Iron statues are immune to arrows, sling stones, thrown weapons (but not crossbow bolts) and take half damage from swords, axes, and knives.

Stone Statue: a stone statue can make a single attack by projecting a blob of lava up to 60' instead of attacking with its fists, the lava does 3d8 damage. Stone statues take half damage from all melee weapons except picks, hammers and war-hammers.

Clay Golem: 3 rounds per day a Clay Golem can hasten itself, striking twice per round. Any living being stuck by a clay golem will find the wounds will never heal until a Restoration spell is cast upon him. Only magical blunt weapons (mace, flail, club, staff, maul, baton, hammer or war-hammer) can do damage to a clay golem. Only spells of the Earth Realm can do damage to a Clay Golem. Clay golems can do 1d3 points of siege damage against buildings.

Flesh Golem: a flesh golem can smash through a wooden or reinforced door in 1 round without any roll needed. Fire and Cold spells slow the creature but do no damage. Electrical attacks heal the creature 1 hit point for each die of damage normally inflicted. The golem is immune to other spells.

Iron Golems: an iron golem can emit a cloud of poison gas 10'x10'x10' directly in front of itself once per 7 rounds. It is slowed by electrical attacks for 3 rounds and is healed by fire attacks on a point for point basis. It is immune to all other spells. Iron golems can do 1d3 points of siege damage against buildings.

Stone Golems: can cast a spell every other round. Rock to mud will slow the creature for 2d6 rounds, rock to mud will heal all damage. Stone to flesh will make it vulnerable to normal weapons for 1 round. Stone golems can do 1d3 points of siege damage against buildings.

CONTROLLING STATUES AND GOLEMS:

Animated statues will obey the creator's orders without question and that control can't be broken. Even after the caster dies, the statue will follow his last orders. Golems, however, are less stable. There is a 1% chance per round of combat that the golem will go berserk and attack all creatures in sight. If the creator comes onto the scene, he has a 10% chance per round of reestablishing control.

CONSTRUCTING STATUES AND GOLEMS:

Statues: to construct an Animated Statue, a magic-user or cleric must pay craftsmen to construct the form, at a cost of 100gp and 3 days of work per hit point. Then, if a magic-user, he must cast the Summon Spirits, Protection from Normal Missiles, Grip of Submission, Polymorph Other and Create Wands spells. If a cleric, he must cast Sanctify Staff spell each day for 7 days. A crystal statue may only be made by a Lawful caster who must also cast Protection from Chaos 10' radius. A stone stature may only be made by a Chaotic caster who must also cast Protection from Law 10' radius.

Golems: golems can be created by 16+ level magic-users or clerics who must pay craftsmen to construct the form, at a cost of 1000gp and 5 days work per hit point. The enchantment takes 1 day per hit point of the golem by the caster. The caster must cast Permanent and Sanctify or Create Permanent Magic items spells. Lower level casters can make Golems too, even without knowing these spells, but they must have a Book of Golems to do so, and it still takes the same amount of money and time.

1.4—CHAPTER FOUR: DRAGONS

Dragons are powerful beings that look like enormous lizards with piercing eyes, cruel fangs and heavy scales. Some dragons have wings and fly, others walk on 4 feet, and still other crawl like giant serpents. They come in 2 categories: Colorful and Metallic. The colorful dragons are either Red, Green, Blue, Black or White and are all Chaotic in alignment. The metallic dragons are either Brass, Silver or Golden, and are all Lawful in alignment.

Each dragon can use its breath weapon 3 times per day. Any target in the area of effect will take a number of hit points of damage equal to the dragon's full, unwounded, hit point total. The victims may make a saving throw for half damage. If the dragon targets a single building with its breath, it inflicts 1 siege point of damage per HD of the dragon, double damage if fire is used against wooden building.

The type of damage the breath weapon inflicts is based on its color. Red=Fire, Green=Corrosive Venom, Black=Acid, Blue=Lightning, White=Cold, Brass=Lightning, Silver=Cold, Gold=Fire. Each dragon type is immune to the sort of damage its breath weapon inflicts.

Dragons are notoriously lustful after treasure, so gold must have some sort of positive magical effect on them. Each dragon lair should have 1000gp per HD of the dragon, plus 1 gem or jewelry per HD and 1 magic item per HD of the dragon.

Salamander: this is a being of the element of fire that looks like a fiery snake-like creature with humanoid arms and a somewhat humanoid face. Its tail attack is a standard constriction attack (see monster notes)

Water Weird: forms in water in 2 rounds. Any hit causes victim to save or become paralyzed. Paralyzed victim is dragged into the water and drowns in 1d4 rounds. Sharp weapons do no damage to it, but blunt weapons do full damage. If it loses all its hp it can re-form after 2 rounds. It takes half damage from fire, and cold spells slow it as slow spell. Bless Food and Water spell kills the creature. Any other spell has no effect. N.B. it has only 3-HD but attacks as if it had 6.

Wind Walker: a creature of the Air Element, it is unable to be harmed by any spell except those of the Air Realm. It can attack all creatures within 10' of it with separate melee attacks.

Xorn: are creates of the Earth Element. They can pass through stone and hide in stone, surprising automatically and escaping easily. They usually demand silver and gold metal to go away, attacking if refused. They look like 3-sided pyramids with a leg, arm and eye on each side and a big mouth on the top. Xorn are immune to fire and cold based spells and take half damage from electricity. It is stunned by any spell that moves earth, and takes 1d10+10 points of damage from Passwall. Most other spells have no effect.

1.6—CHAPTER SIX: EXTRA-WORLDLY BEINGS

Spirits, angels and demons are creatures whose real substance is not of earthly matter. Their natural home is in the heavens, the spiritual otherworld or the pits of the yawning abyss. These beings can only enter our world by magical means, whether through a portal, summoning spell or sending of a god. Once in the world, they are clothed in earthly matter to be able to deal with the material world. If they are “killed” in the earthly world, their spirit simply returns home.

Soldiers of the Heavenly Host: these beings appear as warriors in shining mail and are sent where the gods and Lords of Order deem. These are the beings summoned by the Summon the Faithful 6th level cleric spell and can be summoned by a Summon Monster II spell. Their 25% spell resistance does not apply to the spell that summons them.

Berserkers of Valhalla: these are the spirits of warriors who love battle and have been sent back to Earth to fight for glory and the love of fighting. They can use the Berserker Rage adventurer skill. These are the beings summoned by a Horn the War Gods magic item and can be summoned by a Summon Monster II spell. Their 25% spell resistance does not apply to the spell that summons them.

Demonic Warriors: These are minor demons in humanoid form or ghosts of the damned sent to aid the forces of Chaos on earth. These creatures can be summoned by a Summon Demon magic-user spell and can be summoned by a Summon Monster II spell. Their 25% spell resistance does not apply to the spell that summons them.

Invisible Stalker: these are air elementals of a sort, summoned by an Invisible Stalker spell to complete tasks for a magic-user. They are naturally invisible and so they get a +2 to hit any creature that cannot see the invisible.

Minor Spirits: These are minor heavenly servitors, ghosts or demons who can sometimes be sent to do tasks on earth. They can pass through walls without difficulty and can communicate with their summoner. Lawful spirits are vulnerable to Unholy Water and Chaotic spirits are vulnerable to holy water. None of them can penetrate a circle of protection or divine circle, ever. These are the spirits summoned by the M-U 2nd level Summon Spirits spell. An

Invisible Chuggins summoned by the first level M-U spell is also a minor spirit especially constrained and shrouded by the spell.

Hell Hounds: these are demonic dogs who are excellent trackers (3+ on 1d20) and can breath fire (10' range, 1/round in addition to bite, 1hp of damage per HD, save for half). Hell Hounds can be commonly summoned by a Greater Monster Summoning magic-user spell.

SECTION II: DEMONS

The various regions of the Hell of the yawning Abyss that stands beneath the World and the Realms of the Gods are populated by demons of an infinite number and variety. Demons need some sort of magical aid to come to earth but are fearsome and dangerous when they do. The power of demons is directly related to their size. Included below are a sample of demons, but there are infinitely more types.

SMALL DEMONS

Spitting Imp: a spitting imp is a small demon with wings that can spit a stream of acid up to 20', hitting a target for 2d6 acid damage once per 3 rounds. The victim can make a saving throw to avoid the damage, but failing the save requires that the victim make additional saves for his shield and armor lest they be destroyed by the acid.

Angry Grabber: angry grabbers tend to swarm a target in large numbers attacking with their claws. If either claw hits, in addition to damage, the target must make a saving throw or be affected by a Grip of Pain spell. They look like little, hideously ugly ogres with arms and hands way out of proportion to their bodies.

Spiny Jerk: looking like a demonic porcupine with muscular arms and man-hands, the spiny jerks will usually attack with a weapon like a morningstar, spear or pitch-fork of some kind and also can shoot sharp quills out of its body at a second target within 30' for 1d4 damage.

Flying Chomper: the flying chomper looks like a huge mouth in a smallish rat-like head out of which tiny arms and legs hang and large bat-like wings stretch forth. Anytime it hits with its bite attack and rolls 9+ damage points, the victim must make a saving throw or the chomper has bitten off an arm or leg.

Hellfire Smasher: this creature looks like a man-sized pig-man, surrounded by flames, carrying a fiery flail. Any being within 5' of the smasher takes 1d4 points of fire damage each round. The flail, as a large weapon, can inflict a knockdown to small and medium targets.

Deceiver: the deceiver has no natural form, but can change its shape to that of any small, medium or large size creature, with the same rules as a Polymorph Self spell (but it is a natural ability, not a cast spell). The deceiver can use any enchantment, necromancy or illusion spell of levels 1-4 as regular cast spells. Their goals on earth is to do favors for people, in exchange for some terrible price.

Any creature that a Bat of Hell flies over must make a saving throw or flee for 1d4 rounds.

Hellspawn Sorcerer: appearing as a goat-legged, red-skinned, humanoid with a pointed beard and horns. While they sometimes attack with claws, they will usually cast a spell. They know all necromancy, enchantment, illusion, protection, structure, grip, knowledge, summoning and perception spells of level 1-6.

Fiendish Champion: appearing as an ogre-like, purple-hued, armored warrior with a mighty axe. The champion can use the Fighter Rampage ability up to 8 times per round. Every time the mighty axe hits, the target must make a saving throw or be knocked prone and stunned for 1 round.

Fiery Terror: this being looks like might giant with huge wings and a covering of ever-burning fire. Any time it hits a S,M or L sized target with its fist, the victim will automatically be knocked down and then must make a saving throw or be stunned for 1d4 rounds. The Terror is surrounded by a curtain of flame in a 10' radius, which inflicts 1d8 hit points of damage to all targets within the radius each round, this also ignites all flammable objects.

Great Feaster: feasters are huge primordial demons that look like an immense mound of huge mouths, arms and insect-like legs, it covers a 100'x100' area. Each round it attacks a target for 5d10 damage, but can make up to 20 attacks on 20 different targets each of which has 3-HD or less, any hit means target has been swallowed and destroyed.

Demon Lord: these are a collection of the most powerful demons each of which rules over a large section of the infinite abyssal hells. Their quickness allows them to make 3 actions per round (2 attacks and 1 move, or 2 moves and 1 attack). A demon lord can change form at will, as the Polymorph Other spell. A demon lord's touch acts a rod of cancellation, destroying 1 magic item worn or carried by a target on each hit. The demon lord can cast any cleric spell, except those of Law or Neutrality types, and also any necromancy or illusion spells.

Night Hag: the Night Hags are a species of demon that have discovered a means of coming to the world to slay the Lawful and corrupt and destroy mortals. They use invisibility to creep up on lone mortals, often when asleep. They then cast a Greater Sleep Spell which can put any mortal with less than 15-levels or HD to sleep, it will then attack. It will make up to 7 attacks that will not awaken the victim, each hit drains 1 point of CON on a failed save. It will return night after night until all CON of the target is gone and the Night Hag steals its soul. In regular combat, each claw does 2d6 damage and requires a save or loss of 1 CON. In combat it also casts a Stone Missile Spell which launches 4 missiles per spell.

Night Mare: this is a demonic horse used by various demons and undead as a steed. It is shrouded by unholy fire, causing 1d4 points of damage to mortals and animals within 5' of the demon. Also, when a mortal or animal comes within 5' of the demon, he must make a saving throw or will be partially blinded by the smoke of the beast, suffering -2 to hit roll for the next 10 minutes.

Rakshasa: Rakshasas are demons who have discovered a way onto Earth to terrorize, eat and rule over mortals. They can change their outward appearance at will to any S,M,L form (as Polymorph Self spell). They can cast any Illusion, Perception, Enchantment, Necromancy or Grip spell up to level 4.

SECTION III: ANGELS AND LAWFUL SPIRITUALITIES

The Lawful Gods and other Lords of Order each employ (and even count as friends) numerous spiritual beings as aids, messengers and soldiers in their war to prevent the forces of Chaos from absorbing the universe into the churning chaos of the hellish abyss. Many of them are known as Angels, but there are other types as well.

Messenger Angel: these are the most commonly encountered angels, appearing in a disguised form to give a message from the gods to chosen mortals or to do some other minor task for the gods. Their natural form is a shining golden humanoid.

Comforter Angel: these are sent to give help and comfort to the faithful at the command of the gods. They appear on earth in the form of kindly, older members of any of the mortal species (usually of the lawful end of the spectrum). They prefer to help and mend rather than fight, but will fight if compelled.

Guardian Angel: these are sent by the gods to protect places or individuals from harm. They generally appear as silver-hued humanoids with wings. Each hit with their flaming sword forces the target to make a saving throw or be paralyzed for 1d4 rounds.

Herald Angel: these angels are sent to deliver important announcements publicly to the multitudes or as messengers from one divine being to another. They appear as magnificent humanoids with great wings.

Restorer Angel: sent as relief to the faithful in times of great trouble, these angels are always invisible on the mortal plane. The healing spells of a Restorer angel have an area of effect of a 100' radius, each one curing 10 times the normal number of targets.

Archangel: each Lawful god, goddess or lord of order has an archangel to act as the marshal and constable over all his angels. It is only in gravest circumstance that such a being is seen on earth. The archangel's quickness allows it to make 3 actions per round (2 attack actions and 1 move, or 2 moves and 1 attack). Archangels can do a fighter rampage (8 times per round) and any other combat maneuver, including those restricted to fighters.

Valkyrie: these battle-maidens from the Otherworld serve warlike gods, harvesting the souls of great warriors for them and doing other tasks. They can maintain their invisibility, which extends to their mounts, even when they make attacks. Their mounts are Pegasi with maximum hit points and invulnerability

Corvus: a corvus is a divine raven, crow, or sometimes even an owl or vulture, that serves a god as a scout, spy or deliver of a warning. If they attack they will inflict a grip spell attack with their talons, and regular damage beak attacks.

Nymph: these beautiful divine maidens are sent from the Otherworld to protect areas of wilderness such as a section of a wood, stream, pool etc. They are rarely aggressive, but use enchantments to bind mortals to their purposes. A slap from a nymph does little damage, but the target must make a saving throw or become paralyzed for 1d4 rounds. Nymphs often serve River, Forest, or Mountain Lords and Ladies.

Lares: lares are the spirits of ancestors of a particular clan, clan or house. If the people protected by the Lares have given them ritual worship and respect they will intervene against an assault on them. Typically, the Lares remain invisible and cast protection spells or hold person.

Corybantes: these are ancient warrior spirits in service to Neutral gods. They look like silver-skinned human or elven warriors wearing bronze armor. They can use any combat maneuver, even those restricted to fighters.

Wise Serpent: the wise serpents are spirits from the Otherworld, sometimes the ghosts of ancient heroes, who take up residence in a forest, hidden shrine or tomb to give advice and watch the world for any excess of the Lawful or Chaotic. They look like large snakes with green-glowing eyes, some of them have wings and can fly. Their bite causes the victim to make a save or become paralyzed for 1d6 days and it can also constrict: if it hits a target the same size or smaller than itself, it wraps its coils around the victim and will crush it for its normal melee damage each round thereafter with no need to make an attack roll. Each round the victim suffers a cumulative -1 penalty to all rolls while constricted. The victim may only attack with a dagger, fist or knife or attempt to escape by making a saving throw each round, no other actions.

River Lord/Lady: a River Lord or Lady is a powerful spirit sent from the Otherworld by the gods to protect a large river. They live in the river keeping it safe and clean to the best of their ability. They can blend with the water, but can take on the shape of a large-sized humanoid, often with goat's horns. They can raise up the water of the river, sweeping away anyone with less than 3-HD on either side of the river for about a mile length at the side. Each swept away must save or drown. Anyone who saves is still swept down the river for 1d12x100 yards before crawling out.

Forest Lord/Lady: A Forest Lord or Lady is a powerful spirit sent from the Otherworld by the gods to protect a large forest. They live in the forest keeping it safe and untouched to the best of their ability. They use illusions to confound destructive interlopers and have the power to use a mass confusion spell with a half mile radius. They look like very large elves.

Mountain Lord/Lady: A Mountain Lord or Lady is a powerful spirit sent from the Otherworld by the gods to protect a mountain or group of mountains. They live in or on the Mountain keeping it safe and untouched to the best of their ability. In addition to normal earth spells, they can let loose an avalanche of about a half-mile wide that will do 10d8 points of damage, save for half, to all caught in the slide. The avalanche will destroy any wooden structure in its path and has a 25% chance of destroying well built stone buildings as well. They look like very large Gnomes.

Basilisk: this is a destructive reptile born from evil magic, its bite does 1d10 damage, but its gaze turns an enemy to stone if he fails a save.

Blink Dogs: these are intelligent dogs with the ability to teleport a short distance. They tend to blink around randomly until they can gang up on a single target, blink in and attack.

Catoblepas: a hideous hippo-like beast with a huge head on a thick neck, and a heavy tail. Each time the tail hits, the victim must make a save or be stunned for 1d4 rounds. If it lifts its head (1-2 on 1d6 chance) it can shoot a death ray, 60' long, 5' wide. Anyone caught in the death ray must save or die.

Chaos Monkeys: if a chaos monkey hits with both claws, or rolls a natural 20 on one of them, he has managed to throttle his enemy (size M or smaller) and begins to strangle him for 2d4 automatic damage per round. The victim can try to escape by making a saving throw as his action for the turn, or attack with a fist, knife or dagger.

Hydra: a hydra is a 9-headed serpent with venomous blood. Each head can attack separately doing 1d6 damage, but the venom causes 1 extra point of damage each round thereafter from every wound, until it is treated by Detect Poison Skill or Neutralize Poison spell. The hydra always begins with 72 hit points, but each time a single attack does 9 or more points of damage it destroys 1 head. Unless the attack was fire based, or the stump is treated with fire immediately, the stump will sprout 2 new heads, and heal 9 points of damage.

Kraken: a kraken is a squid-like sea monster. It attacks with its 6 tentacles and if 2 or more hit the same target he must make a saving throw or be dragged immediately to the kraken's mouth where the beast bites for 4d6 more damage. While fleeing, a kraken can let loose a big ink cloud which makes it completely hidden in the water.

Lamia: lamia have the upper body of a woman, with a serpent-tail in place of legs. They can use Charm Person and Polymorph Self spells at will to trick victims into letting them peacefully touch them. Each touch drains 1d4 points of Wisdom from the target, and when the victim reaches 3 wisdom, he becomes the lamia's helpless slave. Someone freed from the lamia recovers 1 point of Wisdom per day. Lamia seek power over mortals generally.

Manticore: a manticore has a lion's body, an ugly goblin-face, great bat wings and a knobby tail filled with spikes. It will either attack with its claws and bite, or soot 1d6 spikes at a single target within 100' doing 1d6 points each.

Porcusquid: the porcusquid looks like a bull-sized porcupine with 6 great tentacles. It can launch 1d6 spikes out at multiple targets, each doing 1d6 damage. Close up it attacks with 6 tentacles. If anyone attacks the beast while using a Small or Medium weapon he will take 1d6 points of damage from being speared by a spike.

Purple Worm: this is a gigantic purple colored worm with a stinger in its tail. If it hits a target with its bite and exceeds the to hit by 3 or more, it swallows the target whole. The victim is helpless and will die in 6 rounds and be totally dissolved in 12. The tail stinger has standard deadly poison.

Refractocat: this looks like a grey-skinned tiger with two tentacles sprouting from its shoulders. It attacks with the tentacles, and if one of them hits, it can then attack the same target with a bite. The cat's greatest power is its ability to refract light around itself. The cat always looks several feet away from its actual location. This gives melee attacks against it by those who can't see the invisible a -3 to hit (this -3 is negated if 3 or more attacks attack the cat in melee at once), and causes all missile weapons shot against it that do not roll a natural 20 to automatically miss.

Rhemoraz: also known as a Cold Bug or Ice Worm, this is a segmented multi-legged creature that looks something like an immense centipede with a big-eyed dragon-like face. If it rolls a natural 20 on its attack it will swallow any Rust Monster: a bug like being about the size of a large pig or small cow. It has two tentacles each of which gets an attack. It lives only to eat metal objects and will always attack metal-armored targets first. When a tentacle hits, the armor worn by the target is rusted away (Magic armor gets a saving throw equal to the wearer's). Any metal weapon that strikes the rust monster is rusted away immediately (magic weapons get a save equal to the user's).

Sea Serpent: a really big snake that lives in the ocean. If it exceeds its attack roll by 3 points or more it will swallow its target whole, who can still attack until he dies after 6 rounds, or the beast is killed.

Shadow: a shadow appears to be just that. It is 90% unable to be seen, thus automatically surprising targets. Each hit does damage and drains off 1 point of Strength from the target (returns after 1 hour). If target is reduced to 0 strength, becomes a shadow itself. Shadows are not undead and can't be turned, but are immune to sleep, hold, charm and cold attacks.

Stirge: are hideous bird/bat/bug creatures with a long blood-sucking tubular beak. Once it has hit, the beak remains in the wood sucking 1d4 points per round until the stirge has sucked 12 points and flies home or the target dies.

Tenta-bugs: this looks like a large, armored millipede or caterpillar with 2 large glowing eyes and a fist full of tentacles for a mouth. Whoever is hit by the tentacles must save or become completely paralyzed for an hour. Once it paralyzes someone it will grab them and drag them away to be eaten, unless attacked.

Umber Hulk: bulking creatures with 2 nasty claws and a huge set of mandibles capable of digging through stone. They love to eat mortals of all flavors. Looking at its four eyes requires you make a saving throw or become confused for 3d4 rounds.

Unicorn: this is a magical horse with a mighty horn. It can strike with 2 hooves and the horn or can charge with the horn for double damage. Once per day it can dimension door as the spell. Its save is much better than its level might suggest.

Yeti: these abominable snowmen are trouble. They attack with claws, if they roll a natural 20 with either attack, they squeeze for an additional 2d6 damage. If they surprise an enemy, the enemy must make a saving throw or be paralyzed for 3 rounds. It can use the Hide Skill (3+ on 1d6) to become impossible to see in the snow or the mountains. They are immune to cold damage.

1.8—CHAPTER EIGHT: GIANTS AND TROLLS

1.9—CHAPTER NINE: LYCANTHROPES

Lycanthropes are mortals who have either inherited or acquired the curse known as lycanthropy. A person so cursed has 3 forms: mortal, beast, and hybrid (rat-man, shark-man etc). In beast or hybrid forms they are all only affected by silver or magic weapons. They can pass the curse on by doing damage to enemies, any person who is reduced to less than half normal hit points by lycanthrope attacks will acquire the curse in 2d12 days, it can be prevented by casting both a cure disease and remove curse spell during the incubation period. After the curse takes hold either a Limited Wish or Restoration Spell is required to remove the condition. Those who acquire the curse can only transform at night, under a full moon, and they do so automatically and involuntarily every full moon. When transformed, they will go on a killing spree until sunrise and have no memory of the events. After one year, they may make a single saving throw, which if passed allows them to get control of the transformations and retain their faculties while transformed, although they still are overcome with bloodlust. Werebears are the exception, they always maintain control and do not seek indiscriminate slaughter.

Crab People: Crab people are the worst kind of people.

Djinni: magical beings who live in the air. They can take 1 round to form a whirlwind, 1 round to sweep through a path 10' wide 60' long, killing all creatures of 2 HD or less and doing 2d6 damage to all others, and 1 round to come back out of it. They can create non-permanent mundane objects 3 times per day, metal or stone ones last a day, wood or cloth ones last a month. The created stuff fills a 20'x20' area.

Doppelganger: doppelgangers are mind-reading, shape-shifting creatures who try to take the place of victims and use their forms to rob and murder. Their saving throws are excellent due to their mind-reading powers. They Read Minds and Change Form on a skill check (3+ on 1d20).

Efreeti: magical fiery beings, enemies of the Djinn. They are immune to normal fire and take half damage from magical fire. They can use the following spells: Flames, Wall of Fire, Hallucinatory Terrain, Polymorph Self, Limited Wish. The limited wish can only be cast if the Efreeti has been bound or controlled, at which time it can grant 3 limited wishes in exchange for its freedom.

Gnoll: also know as beastmen or big beefy jerks, gnolls look like big humanoids with lots of hair, fur or wool and the head of a beast, like a hyena, sheep, goat or boar, for instance.

Hag: hags are malevolent magical humanoids who have the forms of hideous old women. Anyone who looks at one, within 60', must save or have a -3 applied to all rolls for 1 hour due to terror. The hag can use a death gaze 3 times per day, with a range of 30' the victim must save or die. Hags typically cast spells as if 4th level magic-users in addition to their powers.

Nixie: nixes are small green skinned humanoids, vaguely looking like little, webbed footed elves who inhabit lakes. In a group of 5 they can cast a charm person spell that lasts for 1 full year. They like to enslave humans and get them to work for them for 1 year and then release them. They can cast a water breathing spell with a 1 day duration at will.

Mermaid: human like beings with fish tails for legs. Can have some with the Fighter or Magic-user class.

Mind Flayer: these have a humanoid general shape with a hideous octopus-like head with 4 tentacles. If a tentacle hits, it does 3 points of damage and will suck out the victim's brain in 1d4 rounds. It can issue a mind blast in a 60'x5' area, all within must save or be stunned for 1d6 rounds. They can use the following spells: Mind Reading, Levitation, Charm Person and Hypnotic Pattern. They are notorious cowards and flee the minute something goes badly.

Morlock: morlocks are a race of underground albino creatures who specialize in stealth and ambush they can hide in shadows and move silently on 3+ on 1d10. They have +4 to hit and triple damage from a back-stab with surprise or from hiding. Morlocks also are good at setting mechanical traps.

Titan: these gigantic humanoids are said to be of the same race as the gods themselves, without the divine aspect. Each Titan can cast either the spells of a 12th level magic-user or 12th level cleric. A titan's attack can do 1d6 points of siege damage to buildings.

Troglodyte: are lizard-like humanoids with the ability to change their skins to blend in with the surroundings. Make a single skill check for the group (1d6, 3+) and they've hidden. When they enter battle, they give off a revolting stink, anyone who comes within 10' of one must make a saving throw (once per encounter) or lose 1d4 STR and suffer a -2 on all rolls for 1 hour or until neutralize poison is cast on them. Some trogs can become fighters or clerics.

Black Pudding: black pudding can move through tiny cracks, up walls, across ceilings. Their attack is acid-based, someone hit must roll a save or see his shield or armor destroyed. It only is affected by fire, no other damage can be scored. Hitting it with anything else splits it into 2 smaller puddings.

Gelatinous Cubes are a 10x10x10' cube of protoplasm which sweep underground corridors and caves. Anyone that the cube hits must make a save or be paralyzed. The next round, the cube will swallow up the paralyzed victim, doing 2d4 points per round until killed and digested. Cubes are not affected by lightning, cold or most spells; they can take damage from fire spells or spells that propel rocks or other objects at them.

Green Slime: green slime drop from walls and ceilings onto victims. The first round it lands on someone it destroys any armor or clothes worn, the next it begins to devour his flesh, and the next the victim is destroyed, turned into slime. Cure Disease spell will destroy green slime. Otherwise, it has to be attacked with fire or cold, no other attacks work, which does equal damage to the victim.

Grey Ooze: looks like slowly moving wet stone, so is undetected most of the time (1d6 3+ to hide). When it hits, it destroys a shield or armor. It is immune to fire and cold attacks.

Ochre Jelly: a giant amoeba that can ooze through anywhere. If it hits a target it will dissolve a shield and non-metal armor. It is immune to weapons, which just split the jelly into 2 smaller jellies.

Red Goo: red goo lies dormant most of the time, looking like a patch of dried blood. If it is touched it springs to life and snaps out at a nearby living target. Each time it hits a victim, it does 2d4 points of blood-drain damage, which points are actually transferred to the monster. It is immune to fire attacks, illusions and mind-affecting magic.

Yellow Mold: this is a big patch of fungus. If it is touched/ disturbed, it shoots out a cloud of spores 10'x10' area and all within cloud must save or die (standard poison). Touching the mold causes 1d6 points of damage and dissolves wood or leather. White Pudding: much like a black pudding, the white pudding does damage by intense cold of its touch. It seeks heat and fire attacks actually heal the monster on a 1 to 1 point basis. Weapons do affect the white pudding, but after doing damage, metal ones will snap due to the effect of the cold.

Death Bloom: this is a carnivorous plant that sends out 3 shoots. When a shoot hits it does no damage but moves the target to the mouth. The mouth then does 2d6 damage per round automatically, unless the target escapes by making a saving throw. There is a 1 in 4 chance that the bloom is in spore state, and if it is hit it shoots out a 10'x10' cloud of spores, save or fall deeply asleep for 1 hour, likely to be dragged in for food.

Plant People: they're like people, only made of plants.

Rose Roach: this monster looks like a very large flower, but is actually a mobile plant monster that waits for prey while sitting on a bush. Usually a herd of these perch on the same bush. As soon as it hits a target, it takes a big bite and then flees with the meat in its mouth.

Shambling Mound: a man-shaped huge plant monster. If both fists hit, it starts suffocating a victim, killing him in 2d4 rounds if the monster not killed first. It is immune to fire (wet and slimy) and takes half damage from weapons and cold attacks. Lightning heals it 1 hp/die.

Shrieker: a giant walking mushroom. If anyone comes within 5' of it, it makes a hideous noise that will attract wandering monsters.

Strangle Weed: existing as a sea plant and a forest vine, these carnivorous plants attack, and if they hit and roll 4+ points of damage, they strangle the target for 2d6 per round, unless a saving throw is made to escape. They are hard to detect (Hide at 3+ on 1d6).

Treant: these are intelligent, walking tree-people. Once per day, they can spend a round and animate 2 trees that then also fight as treants. Treants have a -4 to their saves against fire and take 1 extra point of damage per die from fire attacks. A Treant attack can do 1d3 points of siege damage to buildings.

Violet Fungus: usually lives with shriekers. It has 4 stalks, and will attack 1 target per stalk. If the stalk hits it does damage and the victim must make a save, if it fails then the wound represents a chunk of flesh having rotted off for the fungus to devour, and the damage is thus permanent until a Regeneration spell or Limited Wish restores it.

1.13—CHAPTER THIRTEEN: Sylvan Creatures

The Sylvan Creatures are those who live in the wild woods in concert with the High Elf principalities and courts. They are mostly neutral toward the conflict between Law and Chaos, thinking of protecting their own homes above all else, but are generally peaceful and friendly (with the exception of certain bands of destructive chaotic centaurs).

Brownie: brownies are peaceful little forest guys who like to bake cookies. They have a high saving throw. They are good at Hiding in the Forest (3+ on 1d20) and use the following spells 1/day each: protection from chaos, continual light, confusion, and dimension door.

Centaur: a horse's body with a man's head, torso and arms atop.

Dryad: these are spirits of mighty oak trees who take on the forms of beautiful women. They can use a powerful charm spell, with a -3 saving throw, up to 3 times per day. If threatened they usually use a dimension door power to teleport back into their tree. They never travel more than 360' from their tree.

Mushroom Man: these are magic, talking man-sized mushrooms, and boy can they dance! They generally aren't aggressive, and if anyone sees them they'll be forest-dancing. Such is the power of their dance that all who see them dancing must make a save or join in and dance to exhaustion (3d4 hours). If someone does them violence they shoot spores which require a save or the victim falls asleep for 1d4 days.

Pixie: pixies are small, winged, magical fairies. Naturally invisible, enemies who can't see them suffer -4 to hit. They can cast the following spells: dispel magic, hallucinatory terrain, polymorph self, and confusion (this is a special grip spell that is permanent unless a remove curse is cast). In addition to their regular arrows, they can shoot sleep arrows which put the target to sleep for 1 day if save is failed and memory loss arrows which if the save fails can only be cured by a cleric's Restoration spell or a Limited Wish.

Porcupine People: these look like big porcupines, but they can stand up on two feet and talk. They are generally friendly. If they hit someone or someone hits them in melee a spine gets stuck in the victim, doing 1 point of damage each round until removed. It takes a whole round to remove a spine.

Satyr: satyrs are like humans up top and goats down below, but have goat's horns too. A portion of each group will have a set of pipes which they can play to cast a Sleep, Fear or Charm spell that affects all non-satyrs within 60' who fail a save.

Woodland Hermit: sometimes when a human, elf or half-elf of great wisdom passes away his spirit reincarnates as a Woodland Hermit. These hermits dwell in a section of forest and dispense advice and help to all who respectfully approach them, regardless of alignment and what the goal of the creature might be. If they hit with their staff, the victim is stunned for 1 round, no saving throw, in addition to damage. They can cast the following spells: Bless Food and Water, Sanctuary, Cure Wounded, Neutralize Poison, Cure Disease, Remove Curse, Animal Friendship, Summon Animals, Hero's Feast, Flame Strike, Quest, Word of Recall.

1.14—CHAPTER FOURTEEN: The Undead

The corpses of the dead, reanimated through the binding of evil spirits are known as the Undead. All undead are Chaotic in alignment, since even if some have no will of their own, they are all fueled by the powers of Chaos.

Undead Immunities: All undead have the following immunities: immune to all Enchantment Realm Spells, immune to Poison and Disease and immune to any other spell or effect that brings about Sleep, Mind-Reading or Charm.

Undead Vulnerabilities: all undead are subject to the turning/controlling effects of clerics. All undead are able to be damaged by Holy Water.

Mummy: the bodies of the dead embalmed and wrapped with secret ceremonies can reanimate as frightful monsters. Anyone who sees a mummy must make a save or be paralyzed with fear until one of his fellows is hit in combat. If a mummy does damage to anyone during a battle, he must make a save or be infected with Mummy Rot, which prevents any natural healing and reduces magic healing by half, permanently. A cure disease cast within an hour of infection, or a cure disease and remove curses together cast within a week will remove the rot. Beyond a week, it takes a Restoration or Wish to remove the rot. Mummies take half damage from all magic weapons and from fire.

Master Ghoul: a more powerful ghoul who can command lesser ghouls.

Specter: a more powerful version of the Wraith who drains 2 levels per hit.

Knight of the Damned: the spirit of an evil warlord reanimated as an undead warrior. Each hit with his sword requires a saving throw or the loss of 1 level or HD. It requires a magic weapon to injure the knight. Knights often are mounted on Night Mares, and if so may use a Lance which will do double damage on a charge.

Vampires: each hit by a vampire drains 2 levels or HD on a failed save. Vampires suffer 6d6 damage each round exposed to direct sunlight. They can regenerate 3 hit points per melee round, transform into the shape of a bat or wolf, use their eyes to cast a Charm Person, and can transform into a mist at will.

Lich and Greater Lich: these are powerful wizards transformed into undead by a powerful spell. The regular lich has all the spells of a 14th level magic-user, a greater lich has the spells of a 19th level magic-user. A hit by a lich in combat requires a saving throw to avoid being paralyzed for 1d4 rounds. It requires a magic weapon to injure a lich or greater lich.

Undead Dragon: the reanimated body of a dragon is a menace to the world. Each hit by the dargon corpse requires a saving throw or paralysis for 1d6 rounds. Its breath weapon is a 60'x10' blast of necrotic energy which, if a saving throw is failed against, drains 1 level or HD for each target, but if succeeded does 3d10 points of damage instead. It requires magic weapons to do damage to the beast.

PART TWO: THE MORTAL SPECIES

2.0--THE MORTAL SPECIES: NOTES AND GUIDELINES

Mortals or Persons are the human-like intelligent creatures that are on roughly same physical scale as humans and are capable of living in communities and making civilizations in the fantasy worlds. Mortals can have character classes, can be used to make player characters and can be encountered as adversaries and friends.

Each mortal encountered will have a class designation, either XC (for Non-Classed) or C (cleric), F (fighter), M (magic-user), T (thief), or L (lackey) or perhaps a combination of two of them in a multiclass (e.g. F/T meaning Fighter/Thief). The difficulty of an encounter revolves around the class, level and equipment of mortals, not so much on the species' native abilities per se.

Species Guideline Description Example:

BADGERMON

Classes: C, F

Size/HD: M, d6

Move: 25'

Ability Score Mod: +1 WIS, +1 CON, -1 INT, -1 DEX

Vision: Poor

Special Ad: Berserk Rage

Special Ad 2: Track by Scent

Format Description:

Name Line: the name of the species (Badgermon)

Classes: what character classes are open to the species: C (cleric), F (fighter), M (magic-user), T (thief). Members of the species may multiclass in any 2 classes they are eligible for. NPC's from any species that can be thieves may be Lackeys. Badgermon can be Clerics or Fighters.

Size/HD: which of the sizes and Hit Die type the species are (see Monster Notes in this book, and Hit Dice in Book 1 for details). Size S mortals cannot use large weapons, or longbows or composite bows. Size L mortals must pay double price for armor and cannot ride horses, but may use most large melee weapons in one hand and still use a shield. A Badgermon is Medium Size, and uses 1d6 for hit points.

Move: what base movement allowance members of the species have. A Badgermon moves 25' at standard encumbrance.

Ability Score Mod: how the ability scores of each member of the species is adjusted after initial roll. A badgermon will add 1 to both his WIS and CON stats, but subtract 1 from both INT and DEX.

Vision: Each species is rated as having Normal, Dark-Vision or Poor Vision. Normal vision is the same as human vision, and those with this vision need a light source to see in dungeons or in the dark generally. Dark-vision is the ability to see in dark, although there is no ability to see color without a light source. Poor vision, while it does allow one to see in the dark, both day and night vision is restricted to only 30'. Some mortals are also Sun Sensitive (orcs and goblins) and suffer a -1 to all rolls when under direct sunlight.

Special Ad: a special advantage, usually it is an Adventuring Skill, like Stonework or Move Silently, or else a bonus to certain saving throws. Badgermon get the adventurer skill Berserk Rage for free.

Special Ad 2: some species have a second special advantage. Badgermon get the Tracking adventurer skill for free, but can use it by scent alone.

2.1—CHAPTER ONE: SPECIES DESCRIPTIONS:

2.1.1—APELING

Apelings are fully bipedal, more or less intelligent, apes. They may look like Gorillas, Chimps, Orangutans, Baboons or Gibbons in general outward appearance, but are all of the same species. Apelings have normal human-like day light vision. They are a little slow and a little stupid and a little hard to get along with but are natural climbers. Apelings are about evenly split between Chaotic and Neutral alignments and don't tend to form large kingdoms or build great cities.

2.1.2—BADGERMON

The Badgermon are a species of intelligent badgers with the power of speech and opposable thumbs that can be found in very small numbers scattered all across the world. Perceptive, fierce and tough, they have become known as serviceable warriors and clerics. Most non-adventuring Badgermon can be found living as hunters near human communities. Badgermon are either loners, living in isolated communities with a Neutral alignment, or they get wrapped up in a Lawful or Chaotic religious cult.

Badgermon have poor vision overall, being descended from burrowing creatures, and while they can see in the dark, both their daylight and dark vision is limited to about 30'. It is rare, therefore to see a Badgermon with a bow, sling or crossbow. They are excellent trackers, using their sense of smell, however. Badgermon are incredibly dangerous when confronted and all have the ability to fly into a berserk rage, using the skill of that name.

2.1.3—CATTER

The Catters are a species of cat-like humanoids that can be found in very small numbers scattered all across the world. Intelligent and nimble they have become known as excellent wizards and thieves. Most non-adventuring Catters can be found living as hunters or herdsmen near human communities. More Catters than not are Neutral in alignment.

The Catters, unlike most other civilized mortal species have retained the claw and bite attacks of their feline ancestors. A Catter can make 3 melee attacks with his claws and bites for 1d3 each. These attacks do not gain any bonus damage from a high STR score. They also see very well in the dark and can move quite rapidly.

2.1.4—CHANGELING

A Changeling is a half-human, half-demonic or half-fairy creature that has been brought up in the human world as a human. Changelings have the outer appearance of a human, but their eyes have an unnatural shine to them. They have a reputation as being very easy to get along with, but often prove to be physically cowardly. Those with a demonic parent are Chaotic in alignment 99% of the time. Those with a fairy parent are Neutral 99% of the time. Of course, PC's can be any alignment they like. Changelings see in the dark, unlike their human family members and friends. They are also somewhat resistant to magic, getting a +2 to saves against spells and magic effects.

2.1.5—DOGGER

The Doggers are a species of dog-like humanoids that can be found fair numbers wherever human communities have reached. Tough and perceptive, they make good soldiers and priests. Most non-adventuring Doggers can be found living as hunters, shopkeepers or herdsmen in or near human communities. Doggers are about evenly divided among all three alignments. The Doggers have normal, daylight vision like humans. However, they can detect by smell to a distance up to 120' and can follow tracks by scent on a normal skill roll.

2.1.6—DWARF

The Dwarves are one of the oldest civilizations in the world. Dwarves generally look like short, thick bodied humans. They typically live in small underground towns where they mine ores and gems and create first rate metal work and jewelry that they trade for the food they need. The Dwarves have the reputation of being distant and irritable, but physically resilient. A large proportion of their population have a level or two in the fighter class, but there are some miners and craftsmen who are not warrior trained. Most Dwarves are Lawful in alignment.

The Dwarves have excellent Night Vision from living underground. Because of their unfamiliarity with arcane magic and their general hardiness, all Dwarves get +2 saves vs. Magic and vs. Poison. They also are very accustomed to dealing with underground constructions, so have the Stonework Skill, allowing them to spot pits, weird construction and stone-traps underground.

2.1.7—ELF AND HALF-ELF

The Elves have a truly ancient magical civilization located in sylvan hideaways and hidden by ancient magics. Elves generally look like slender, willowy humans with pointed ears and bright eyes. They have a lifespan of many centuries and so almost all of them have at least 1 level in a character class. Despite their long-lifespans, elves are rather frail overall. High Elves are the ancient nobility of the species and lord over secret castles far from the sight of ordinary creatures. The bulk of the elves are Wood Elves who live in forest encampments surrounding the High Elven fortresses. Dark Elves, are renegade cousins of the High Elves, who now live deep in the Earth, devoted to long forgotten gods of chaos; this species is not available for Player Characters, but have identical profile to High Elves. Half-elves are people with both human and elf ancestry, and there are even some small communities made up of half-elves of long mixed lineage.

The Elves have excellent Dark Vision arising from their equally diurnal and nocturnal lifestyle. Their keen senses makes it easy for High Elves, Dark Elves and Half-elves to detect secret doors, sometimes when not even trying, but Wood Elves instead are able to use the Move Silently skill. Most NPC Wood Elves who are magic-users are Natural Sorcerers who do not use a spell book. Most NPC High Elves, Dark Elves and Half-elves who are magic-users are standard Magic-Users and do use a spell book. Elves are divided about evenly in alignment between Lawful and Neutral. Dark Elves, however, are almost entirely Chaotic. Elves and Half-elves are also immune to the paralyzing effect of ghouls (but not to other sorts of paralysis) and gain a +2 on saves vs. all Sleep and Charm spells, even gaining a saving throw against such magic when the spell indicates they shouldn't.

2.1.8—GNOME

The Gnomes are cousins to the dwarves and look similar but are much smaller and have longer noses. They live both in underground towns and in forest communities. Gnomes are friendlier than dwarves, more mercurial and humorous than dwarves, and sometimes more treacherous than dwarves. Gnomes are about evenly divided among Lawful, Neutral and Chaotic alignment.

The Gnomes have excellent Dark Vision from living underground. The Gnomes are much more involved in the works of magic and many are natural sorcerers. Their magical mastery and native cunning have given them improved saving throws across the board. This familiarity with magic allows all gnomes to cast a Detect Magic spell once per day, even if wearing armor and even if they can't otherwise cast spells. They also are very accustomed to dealing with underground constructions, so have the Stonework Skill, allowing them to spot pits, weird construction and stone-traps underground. Because of their small size, Gnomes cannot use Large Weapons, Longbows or Composite Bows.

2.1.9--GOBLIN, HOBGOBLIN AND BUGBEAR

Goblins, Hobgoblins and Bugbears are different varieties of the same humanoid species. Their faces are twisted and uneven, their skin is rough and an orange or greenish hue. Goblins are small, about 4' tall, while Hobgoblins are bigger, standing between 5 and 6 feet and Bugbears even larger, being between 6½ and 7 feet tall. All three sorts are nearly all given over to the Chaotic alignment, but Neutral and Lawful renegades can be found.

The Goblinoids have excellent Dark Vision from living underground. Goblins are known for their nimbleness and treachery, although on average they're a bit stupid. Hobgoblins have more cunning and foresight, but both types have a reputation for unpleasantness. Bugbears are tall and lanky, known for their speed and stealth. Goblins find the sun to be incredibly unpleasant, and they suffer a -1 on their attack rolls and Morale level when under its direct rays. Goblins are excellent trackers, and Hobgoblins are known for their keen hearing. Because of their small size, Goblins cannot use Large Weapons, Longbows or Composite Bows. Because of their large size, Bugbears can use Large melee weapons, except pikes, bills and halberds, in 1 hand and still use a shield. Because of their large size, any suit of armor that will fit a Bugbear will cost double normal price and they cannot ride horses. XC Bugbears will have 3 HD.

2.1.10—HALFLING

Just as Gnomes are smaller cousins to the dwarves, so Halflings are the cousins of humans, but they are much smaller and have hairier feet. Halflings live in farming villages scattered about the world and are agricultural experts. Halflings are usually open and friendly but prefer the company of their own kind. The overwhelming majority of halflings are Lawful, but renegades of other alignments, especially neutral thieves, can be found.

Halflings have normal daylight vision like humans. Because of their superior hand/eye coordination, Halflings get a +2 to hit when using any missile weapon. They are also naturally difficult to spot in the wild, and so they all get the Move Silently and Hide in Forest skills, no matter what class they are. Because of their small size, Halflings cannot use Large Weapons, Longbows or Composite Bows.

2.1.11—HUMAN

Humans are the same sort of beings you see all around you every day. They have normal daylight vision and are the standard that the ability scores are set upon. They are evenly divided among all 3 alignments and can be saintly or friendly or reserved or unfriendly or monstrous in character. Humans gain 1 additional Adventurer skill at first level.

2.1.12—KOBOLD

The kobolds are a weird species of underground dwelling miscreants. They have a wide-range of appearance, some looking like twisted, aged Gnomes, others looking like small dog-people and still others looking like small lizard-people or even tiny dragon people. They all speak the same language and live in mixed company.

Kobolds have Dark Vision due to their subterranean habitat. They are considered by most to be nimble, fragile and unpleasant to deal with. They often live as scavengers, and so are quite good at searching through dungeon garbage safely. They are known for quick-tactics traps and ambushes too. Almost all kobolds are Chaotic in alignment, but a few Neutral renegades are known. Because of their small size, Kobolds cannot use Heavy or Very Heavy Weapons, Longbows or Composite Bows.

2.1.13—LIZARD

The Lizard are a species of bipedal reptilian humanoids. They currently live in primitive tribal communities in the deserts, jungles and swamps of the world. While today they are ignorant of the building arts and of arcane magic, it seems that in the distant past they had a complex civilization with deep arcane knowledge. Lizard have normal daylight vision, being largely diurnal. They usually live as hunter-gatherers, with some clerical shaman offering the help of the gods. Because of their scaly hides, Lizard have AC 12 when unarmored and gain no benefit from wearing leather armor (chain is still AC 15, plate AC 17, shields adding 2 as normal). Non-classed Lizard have 2 HD. Lizard are about evenly divided among Neutral and Chaotic alignments. Because of their tails and weird smell, Lizard cannot ride horses.

2.1.14—OGRE AND HALF-OGRE

Ogres are a species of large, cruel and rather stupid humanoids. They are largely seen as bullies and terrorists by other species, because they bully and terrorize anyone they can. They've never built a civilization of their own, but often act as torpedoes and goons for Chaotic civilizations that let them run wild on occasion. They have heavy brows and thick heavy jaws, often with protruding fangs. About three in four Ogres is Chaotic and the other fourth are Neutral.

Half-ogres are folk with part Ogre heritage, the other half being usually Orc or Human. They are a bit less robust, a bit less stupid than full ogres, but still rather robust and stupid. Half-ogres are mostly loners.

Both Ogres and Half-ogres have Dark Vision and are good at breaking things (Buster Skill). Their large size allows them to use Large Melee Weapons (apart from bills, halberds and pikes) in one hand and use a shield in the other. But, because of their large size, any suit of armor that can fit an Ogre or Half-Ogre costs twice the list price. Non-classed Ogres had 4-HD, Non-classed Half-Ogres have 2-HD. Because of their size, Ogres and Half-ogres cannot ride horses.

2.1.15—ORC AND HALF-ORC

Orcs are a species of particularly cruel and destructive humanoids, perhaps created by Chaotic powers to spread ruin and disorder. Like Ogres, they've never built a civilization of their own, but often act as thugs and goons for Chaotic civilizations that let them run wild on occasion. They have a stooped posture, warty skin, long arms, red glowing eyes and often protruding fangs. Nearly all Orcs are chaotic in alignment.

Orcs are surprisingly interfertile with many species. Half-orcs are people who have some orcish ancestry, usually mixed with humans, halflings, hobgoblins, goblins, kobolds or even lizards. They are a bit less likely to be given in to chaos and vandalism, but are looked at with suspicion by many. Individuals might be called Half-orcs, but whole mixed-orc communities are usually called Orkin.

Both Orcs and Half-orcs have Dark Vision and used to eating garbage (+2 saves vs poison or disease). Full orcs also are good at searching through garbage safely (Searcher Skill) but also are adverse to sunlight, making all attack rolls at -1 and suffering a -1 penalty to their Morale stat under sun-lit conditions. Because of their natural weird scent, full orcs cannot ride horses.

2.1.16—RATTER

Ratters are intelligent rats the size of a gnome, gifted with human-like hands and voices. They have developed speech and a rudimentary society. Most often found skulking about large human cities and ruins or raiding farmers' fields, they are considered to be a nuisance rather than a menace. Halflings find them a true problem, while Catters find them delicious. They have aptitude for little other than stealing things.

They have Dark Vision because of their nocturnal shenanigans, and gain +4 on saves vs. poison and disease since they live mostly on garbage. They often go down on all fours and thus have a very fast movement rate. Because of their small size, they cannot use Large Weapons or Longbows or Composite Bows.

2.1.17—SPRITE

Sprites are an ancient species of diminutive size that dwells in secluded wilderness areas. They are smaller than gnomes or halflings, being only about 2' tall. Gifted in magic, they can cast an Invisibility Spell once per day, regardless of class or the armor they wear. Most Sprites are Neutral, but both Lawful and Chaotic bands have been encountered. They have normal daylight vision, like humans, because of the diurnal lifestyle. They are reputed to have the best fashion sense of all mortal species. Because of their small size, they cannot use Large Weapons or Longbows or Composite Bows.

2.1.18—TROLLSON

The Trollsons are a species descended from a group of ancient Frost Giants, who were gifted magicians, and humans ("giant" and "troll" were synonyms among the human group from which these folk descend). They are larger than normal humans and have some inherent magical gifts. They appear as large humans, around 7 feet tall with a bit of an icy sheen to them.

They have normal daylight vision, like humans. Their giant heritage gives them immunity to cold damage and the ability to see through any illusion (but not to see the invisible). Because of their large size, they can use Large Melee weapons (apart from pikes, bills and halberds) in 1 hand and use a shield. Because of their large size, any suit of armor that can fit a Trollson costs twice the list price and they are unable to ride horses. Non-classed Trollsons have 2-HD. Trollsons are evenly divided among all 3 alignments.

PART THREE: MORTAL ENCOUNTERS

3.1—ARMED BANDS

In the exploration of dungeons, wilderness and cities, running into armed bands of mortals of the various species is a common source of help and danger. These armed bands are made up of both XC and Class-Level individuals in various proportions. Types of typical armed bands are described below with composition, arms, usual species and 1 example for each.

3.1.1--BANDITS

One of the most common foes that a beginning adventurer needs to deal with are bandits. A bandit is a XC mortal that has gone into the business of armed robbery. Bandits are either Neutral opportunists, or Chaotic lovers of stealing and hurting people.

In a dungeon, you might run into 1d4 of them at a level-0, 1d6 at level-1, 2d6 at level-2, 4d6 at level-3 (possibly with a leader). In the outdoors, you might run into a gang of 4d6 with a leader, or a large band of 3d6x10 of them (with 1 leader per 20). In a town, you'd probably only encounter 1d4 of them at a time. The ordinary bandit will wear leather or no armor, may or may not have a shield, and carry inexpensive weapons like clubs, staffs, spears, hand-axes, knives, slings and short-bows. The leaders are usually fighters of level 2-3. Bandits can be apelingis, badgermon, doggers, humans, halflings, half-orcs, or ratters. Bandits roll 2d6 for MOR.

Example:

Human Bandit (XC) AC: 14, Hp 1d6, Size M, Move 30', MOR 2d6, Neutral, Save 17

Hand Ax +0, 1d6 dmg. Sling +0, 1d4.

Leather, shield, hand axe, sling, stones

3.1.2—BERSERKERS

Berserkers are bands of warriors, always at least level-1 Fighters, who have dedicated themselves to one of the war gods (any god with Combat as his bonus spell type) and fight for the love of fighting. They are notorious raiders, living from the plunder of those they fight. Berserkers refuse to wear metal armor. They all have the Berserk Rage skill (+2 to hit, various resistance to fear), and even when they aren't raging, they have very high morale. Both those dedicated to Lawful and Neutral war gods are themselves considered Neutral, those devoted to Chaotic war gods are themselves Chaotic. A group of berserkers will usually be about 90% a mixture of levels 1-2, with the remainder being higher level.

In a dungeon, you might meet 1d4 on level 1, 2d4 on level 2, 4d4 on level 3. In the outdoors, you might run into a berserker raid force of 2d6x10 berserkers. In town, there may be a small group of 1d6 looking for mercenary work. The common berserker wears leather armor, carries a shield and a sword or battle ax. He may also carry a hand ax to throw, if absolutely necessary. Berserkers can be badgermon, dwarves, humans, half-ogres, ogres or trollsons. Berserkers roll 5d6 for MOR.

Example:

Human Berserker Veteran (F-2) AC: 14, Hp 2d6+2, Size M, Move 30', MOR 5d6, Neutral, Save 15

Berserk Rage, Too Stubborn to Die

Battle Ax +1, 1d6 dmg.

Leather, shield, battle ax

3.1.3—KNIGHTS

Knights are heavily armored mounted warriors who make up the backbone of the armies of the great lords. All knights are members of the Fighter Class, with the first level fighters being considered Squires (knights in training). Knights will usually wear either Brigandine or Plate Armor, carry a shield, and carry lance, sword, mace and dagger. They will ride Heavy Warhorses as well. Sometimes, you might encounter knights in dungeons (without horses or lances), with 1d4+1 knights of a level equivalent to the dungeon level. In the outdoors, you might encounter a band of 1d12 knights (levels are somewhere between 2nd and 8th), each with his own squire, and 1d4 foot soldiers. Humans, and to a lesser extent the High Elves, are the ones to field knights. Knights roll 4d6 for MOR.

Example

Human Knight (F2): AC: 18, Hp 2d6+2, Size M, Move 25', MOR 4d6, Lawful, Save 15
Quick Draw, Shield Sacrifice, Fighter maneuvers
Lance +1 1d10 dmg, Sword +1, 1d6 dmg, Mace +1, 1d6 dmg
Plate Armor, shield, lance, sword, mace, dagger, heavy warhorse

3.1.4—PIRATES

Pirates are the crews of ships who have turned outlaw. Most pirates are humans, half-orcs, ratters or trollsons. The bulk of the crew will be XC, but about a quarter will be Fighters or Thieves. Only the crew designated as marines will wear any armor at all. Clubs, daggers and knives will be ubiquitous, and the marines will likely have spears and either shortbows or light crossbows. Check Book 4 for ship types to see how many crew are aboard each sort of ship. Pirates roll 3d6 for MOR.

Example

Human Pirate Rigger (T1) AC: 10, Hp 1d6, Size M, Move 30', MOR 3d6, Ne or Ch, Save 16
Thief Skills, Quick Draw, Alert Reaction
Sword +1, 1d6 dmg, Dagger +1 1d4 dmg, Short Bow +1 1d6 dmg
Dagger, sword or short bow and arrows

3.1.5—RAIDERS

Bands of armed mortals who leave their home villages or towns and attack the lands of others in order to steal things, take captives and destroy their foe's livelihoods are called raiders. A group of raiders will usually be about 45% XC, 45% level-1 fighters or possibly thieves, with the remainder being higher level.

In a dungeon, you might meet 1d4 on level 1, 2d4 on level 2, 4d4 on level 3, and groups of 20 or even 40 on lower levels. In the outdoors, you might run into a raider band of 4d6x10 members. In town, there may be a small group of 2d6 looking for mercenary work. The common raider might wear leather armor or lamellar or sometimes even chain mail, carries a shield and any medium melee weapon. About a quarter of them might carry a missile weapon of any sort. Human raiders often ride light warhorses, carrying horse bows in addition to a melee weapon, and taking the Split-Fire adventurer skill. Raiders roll 3d6 for MOR.

Raiders can be bugbears, catters, doggers, gobins, half-ogres, half-orcs, hobgoblins, humans, kobolds, ogres, orcs, ratters or trollsons.

Example

Orc Warrior Raider (F-1) AC: 15, Hp 1d6+1, Size M, Move 30', MOR 3d6, Chaotic, Save 16
Searcher, +2 poison save, Fighter maneuvers, Sun-sensitive
Sword +1, 1d6 damage, Javelins +1 1d6 damage,
Stink Leather, shield, sword, 6 javelins

3.1.6—SAVAGES

Primitive Tribesmen are dangerous in their wilderness homes. Tribal warbands are divided into about 1/3 XC, 1/3 F-1, 1/3 F-2 and a few higher-level fighters, shaman (CL) or witch doctors (MU). They have either no armor, or hide armor, some carry shields. Spears, clubs, short bows, javelins and knives are their common weapons. In tribal areas they might appear in dungeons in similar numbers as bandits would. In the outdoors, they would live in villages of up to 100 warriors. Savages might be apelike, catlike, doglike, half-orcs, human or lizard. XC savages roll 2d6 MOR; Fighter savages roll 3d6.

Example

Lizardo Savage (XC) AC: 14, Hp 2d6, Size M, Move 30', MOR 2d6, Neutral, Save 17
Spear +0, 1d6 dmg. Sling +0, 1d4.
Shield, spear, sling, stones

3.1.7—SCOUTS/RANGERS

Those who are trained to search out, investigate and/or ambush enemies in the wilderness are scouts or rangers. They will always be at least first level, and usually Fighters, Thieves, or Multi-class Fighter/Thieves. Sometimes Elven scouts might be Fighter/Magic-User multiclass and Gnomes might be thief/magic-user multiclass. Encounters will be with small groups from 1 to 10 in number with levels 1 through 4 common. In the open plains, they will usually be on horseback. Since mobility is key they will wear leather or lamellar armor. Most will carry missile weapons, usually short or long bows. Catlike, Elves, Gnomes, Halflings, Half-elves, Humans and Half-orcs are the typical scouts. Scouts roll 3d6 for MOR,

Example:

Wood Elf Scout (F-2) AC: 14, Hp 2d6+2, Size M, Move 30', MOR 3d6, Neutral, Save 15
Elf Immunities, Hide in Forest, Move Silently
Longbow +1, 1d6 dmg. Sword +1, 1d8 damage
Leather, longbow and arrows, sword, knife, 2d6gp

3.1.8—SOLDIERS

The lords, cities, republics and robber barons of the world keep bodies of trained men to do battle with their enemies. The less-well trained are XC, experienced regulars are F1, Veterans F2, and Elite F3, Soldiers can be from any species who can take the Fighter class. Typically, they come in squads of 10 with 1 of the 10 being sergeant or leader 1 level higher than the squad members. 2-10 squads make up a company with a captain at least 1 level higher than the sergeants. Equipment for soldiers is Gambeson, Chain, Scale or Brigandine, and they might carry any combination of weaponry, but the basic choice is either A) shield and a medium melee weapon B) no shield and a large melee weapon C) no shield and a bow or crossbow and a medium melee backup weapon.

Soldiers are either working for a lord or other government figure, and so are on a mission or doing a specific duty or patrol (50%), or they can be mercenaries between jobs (25%) looking for work or adventuring on their own, or maybe they are out of work and have taken to being brigands (25%). Squads of soldiers can be found in dungeons. At a level-0 dungeon, there will be a group of 1d6 XC soldiers, at level-1 1 squad of 9 XC soldiers with 1 F1, at higher levels either 1 squad F2-F3 with a F4 leader, or 2 squads of F1 with a F2 leader. There may be fewer than a full squad, especially acting as bodyguards to clerics or magic-users. In the wild, anywhere from 1 squad to several companies might be encountered. XC soldiers roll 2d6 for MOR, F1 soldiers roll 3d6 for MOR, and F2 or greater soldiers roll 4d6.

Example

Dwarf Veteran Soldier(F-2) AC: 16, Hp 2d6+2, Size M, Move 20', MOR 4d6, Lawful, Save 15
Save +2 magic/poison, Stonework, Shield Sacrifice
Battle Ax +1, 1d6 dmg. Dagger +1, 1d4 damage
Chain mail, shield, battle ax, dagger

3.1.9—TREASURE

When armed bands of mortals are encountered, each member will have his own amount of money, based on their type and level (XC count as 1 level).

Bandits: 1d4gp per level.

Berserkers: 2d6gp per level.

Knights: 100gp per level.

Pirates or Raiders: 1d10gp per level.

Savages: 1 copper ring or necklace each

Scouts/Rangers: 1d10gp per level.

Soldiers: 10gp per level.

If the armed band is encountered at their camp or lair (and there are at least 50 in the band), there will also be a central treasury, with approximately 1000gp times the level of the highest level character in the band. If they are Savages, the treasury will not be actual coins, but a mixture of goods, animals and cheap jewelry items. For other bands, about half the treasury will be coins, the rest an equivalent amount of useful supplies.

If a patrol or small group's campsite or hideout is discovered, place 1 barrel or crate for each 5 members and 1 sack for every three members there. (see Book 3).

3.2 NPC ADVENTURER ENCOUNTERS

When NPC adventurers are encountered, they will be on a mission similar to the players.

1-3--All Goblinoids: party is mixed Goblins, Hobgoblins and Bugbears (alignment Chaotic)

4-5--All Orcish: mixture of orcs and half-orcs, any MU are dark elves (alignment Chaotic)

6-14--All Humans, roll alignment (1-2, L, 3-4 N, 5-6 C)

15-16--Dwarf Alliance: mixture of dwarves, gnomes and halflings (alignment Lawful)

17-18--Elves; all High, Wood and Half elves. Alignment, Neutral)

19-20--Wide Mixture: mixture of any type Judge wishes, roll alignment (1-2, L, 3-4 N, 5-6 C)

Check Numbers, roll 2d6, and that is the number of members in the party.

Check Class of each one: 1d20

1-3 Cleric

4-8 Fighter

9-10 Magic-User

11-14 Thief

15 Multi-class (reroll till 2 real classes appear, subtract 1 xp level)

16-17 Lackey (henchman)

18-20 Guard (F1 or F2 henchman)

Experience Level: apart from any guard henchmen, the NPC adventurers will be the same as the effective dungeon level (or average of the player character level).

Equipment:

Fighters and Guards will be wearing chainmail at level 1, brigandine at levels 2-3, plate armor at levels 4-7, and quenched plate armor at levels 8+. They will have a 50% chance of having a shield and a medium weapon, and a 50% of no shield and a large weapon.

Clerics: will have weapons and armor as a Fighter, will carry a silver divine symbol, and 1 heal wounded potion.

Thieves and Lackeys will be wearing leather at level 1, lamellar at levels 2-10, and spider silk shirts at levels 11+. Thieves will have a short sword and thief tools, lackeys a war pick and a bunch of gear.

Magic-users will wear regular clothes, levels 1-10, spider silk shirts at 11+. Each will have a quiver of darts and a dagger, a spell component bag, and 1d3 first level scrolls (unless if they are a sorcerer or witch).

Magic Items: Fighters have a 5% chance per level that their weapon is magic, and a 5% chance per level that their shield or armor is magic. Clerics have a 1% chance per level of having a magic Staff, 3% chance per level of having a magic weapon, and a 10% chance per level of having 1d4 potions. Magic-Users have a 5% chance per level of having 1d6 scrolls of level 1-3, and a 5% chance per level of having a magic wand. Thieves have a 3% chance per level, each, of having a magic sword, 1d3 scrolls, a magic wand and magic armor. Guards and Lackeys don't have magic items.

Coin: have each Principal Member have 50gp per experience level in coin/jewelry value. Have each henchman have 10gp per experience level.
