The Pirate Bastards make their way toward their hideout in the Seven Skulls sea caves. They encounter a French Brigantine trading vessel named La Fiancée des Vagues. They trade some cannon shots, then board. A terrible amphibious monster emerges from below decks just as the crew begins to surrender. It tears many of the French mariners to bits. Only Francois and Stefan are rescued from the Fiancée. The two Frenchmen are given muskets once they are added to the crew. On board they find 250 silver worth of provisions and some documents with details of Rum Futures in Port du Prince. Once they reach their hideout, they leave the sloop and take the new Brigantine to Tortuga to build up their crew.

The Pirate Bastards pass by a raft with six decaying bodies. Chungus is left in a dingy with a silver figurehead of a viking woman who is able to communicate with him. The Pirate Bastards fight some undead pirate skeletons.

The Pirate Bastards arrive in Tortuga and dock at the Commercial District. They are charged ten percent of their cargo that is sold as a tax to Jean Le Vasseur, the Buccaneer King. Tadg asks if there is a jeweler in town, but there is no such thing. The Bastards split up and head into town. Madeline and Evette steal silver from Tadg in the Red Light district, but he manages to retrieve it. Juan is nearly lynched for practicing "witchcraft" in a local watering hole known as the Scarlet Raven. Van Halen and Red Eye take in a bum fight between Uncle Fargus and Chuggins at the Town Hall. Adelmar had dinner with Cosette Le Vasseur, daughter of Jean Le Vasseur in the manor house. He awoke pantsless in the street feeling terrible.

The Pirate Bastards recruit four pirate crew and kidnap another three before making their way out into open seas before Le Vasseur sends someone to learn more about them.
